HANGED ON SUNDAY.

THE SUICIDE OF FRED MORGENSTERN ON SUNDAY.

No Cause Assigned for the Act-Cut Down in His Own Kitchen Garden at 8 O'clock Last Night-His Thirty third Wedding Anniversary.

[Extra 9 o'clock edition.]

Frederick Morgenstern, a German who lived at the corner of Center and State streets, in the fourth ward, committed suicide by hanging Sunday evening. He came to this country a year ago last September with his family, locating in this city. He worked for some time sists of his widow and five grown children, three daughters and two sons, one daughter being married. He was sixty-three years of age, and yesterday was the thirty-third anniver-

The details of the act of self-dsstruction are brief. He was down at the core ner of Main and Mill streets between half-past six and seven o'clock yesterday evening and was met by his two single daughters, one of whom works at McGrath's Hotel, and they asked him if he was going home. He the council, were forwarded to the state replied that he was. The daughters went home within a half hour after the meeting, and when they entered the yard at the residence they found their father suspended by a rope around his neck, bonds for the purchasing of grounds from a limb of a peach tree, within a few feet of the kitchen door. A brother who was in the house was informed of the fact, and he cut the body down while it was yet warm but life was extinct.

> In an effort to ascertain the cause for the act the members of the family were questioned last night, but none of them could even surmise a reason for the suicide. He seemed to be depressed in spirit during the day and sat in the house most of the time with his head resting on his hands and seemingly brooding over something, but scarcely speaking to any one. It is known that he was dissatisfied with this country and had frequently expressed himself to the effect that he would return to his native piace as soon as he was able to do so. Worry. ing over the unfavorable prospect of ever returning to the old country coupled with the fact that he was old and literally without money, are the most reasonable causes for the deed. The family is in such indigent circumstances that the township trustees will have to bear the funeral expenses.

Mrs. Jacob Knobloch, of West Tremont street, is a sister of the dead man and he also has another sister living at Paris, Stark county.

A MISSING HUSBAND.

George W. Rhodes Disappears with his Fayorite Child.

Another man is missing. Week before last, it will be remembered that this paper detailed the outrageous abuse of Mrs. Georre W. Rhodes by her husband, compelling her to go to the police for intervention.

Saturday night this same George W. Rhodes slipped away from town, nor does his wife now look for his return. Ostensibly he left for Canton "to look for work," as he put it, and took his little year-old son along for the child's amusement. They were to come back last night, but failed to appear.

Mrs. Rhodes is not at all distressed about the loss of her husband, but she grieves greatly on account of the lad who was his father's favorite. Mrs. Rhodes thinks that the man has gone to Philadelphia where he originated. All his clothing and small effects are gone, and Mrs. Rhodes now recollects that her husband made all manner of excuses during the week for the removal of clothing and other articles. His tool chest, which he kept in the new Chrissome reminiscent remarks by the pas- tian church, where had been working,

A TALE OF A DOG. The Strong Affection Which Continues Though the Dog is Dead .

THE INDEPENDENT is in receipt of reliable information on a case of attachment and affection for an animal which is so surprising as to merit publication. A widow residing on Tremont street had a black and tan dog which was almost her entire companionship, and she, naturally and commendably, became greatly attached to the snimal. His dogship, sad to relate, died, or in the more elegant and affecting language of the unknown but brilliant poet, "Every dog must have his day; he had his and passed away. The demise occurred between three and four weeks ago; but instead of giving her close friend a decent burial and saturating the grave with tears, the bereaved and sorely stricken woman placed the valued remains in a satin lined catafalco constructed with her own hands and deposited the receptacle for the departed in her parlor. And there the inanimat remains are vet kept to this day, the grief-ridden widow making it a daily custom to repair to the spot and weep, The pastor, Mr. Smith, was very felicitous in his discours, which closed with It is not known whether the body was embalmed.

It Needs Attention.

MR. EDITOR: Will you please call the attention of the street commissioner to the almost impassable condition of the North Mill street sidewalks, about onehalf mile from the city. Sometimes people seriously think of swimming the rest of the way.

To Senator Howells: Wait until you hear from the board of trade on the city hall matter.

There are still several letters in the alphabet, unrepresented in the revised list of candidates for street commissioner.

It is not an advertisement but a statement of fact, that he who takes stock in the Massillon Building and Loan Company has done wisely from any point of view. Those who have not thought of it should do a little quiet investigating, and test the truth of the observation

Nobody would be incommoded, and the public convenience would be subserved by adopting central standard time for all purposes. It is elsewhere; why not here?

The street improvement bond bill will not increase taxation as the cost of paving is nearly all collected from abutting property owners. street improvements are neededthey are imperative. But how about a city hall? The bill as prepared improved, and it is hoped that present does not permit citizens to vote and prospective lot owners will coupon the proposition. If the bill is passed as presented, the council will have authority to sell the bonds, and build the hall, without inquiring whether it is the desire to have one or not.

The work of the council in precipa itating the city hall matter, without even consulting the board of trade has already engendered a feeling in members of that body, that is very unfortunate. It is the McKinley tariff law which brings about this result, and the McKinley tariff law is a protective measure in the best sense of that term. It has removed duties from articles which cannot be produced here and has imposed duties upon articles which being protected, can be made on this side of the water. A stricly revenue tariff bill, such as Mr. Mills constructed, and which the Democratic party points to as its platform to-day, would retain the present sugar schedule, thereby insuring a greater revenue than is possible by a faithful adherence to a b c of the McKinley idea.

A Wilful Man:-It is a cold day when foreman Jacob Spubler can't find a place to pinch his toe, his finger, or some other busy member, though, remarkable to say, his nose has so far escaped. In fact, we believe he is the champion accident hunter in these woods. If he can't get get in if has to go in the other way. Last Saturday evening while giving in structions to some workmen, and seeing no place to pinch himself, he backed up against Frank Traphagen's lathe and succeeded in entangling his coat tail in the gearing, and remained there until listed up so that he began to dance a fine toe step, similar to the "devil's dream." At this juncture Mr. Traphrgen, being a very tender hearted gentleman, and, although expressing much regret disappointing the ambitions of Mr. Spueler, turned off the motion. After he was released, Mr. Spuhler walked away uttering something about trying some other place, and, judging from his past record, it is feared he will succeed unless some kindly disposed person can persuade him to allow some sort of safety appliances to be attached to his person. Until this can be accomplished, we will be very grateful over here in the mechine shop if the foremen in other departments will furnish him with a guide when he calls.

PROGRAMME THIS WEEK.

THE SENATE TO DISPOSE OF SOME APPROPRIATION BILLS.

Probability of the Fortifications Bill Passing-Mr. Blair Expects to Get Up Confident He Can Call Up the Copyright Bill-Appropriation Bills to Occupy Most of the Time in the

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Both houses of congress met at 2 o'clock to-day in order to enable members to attend the funeral of Secretary Windom, which took place at noon. There is a great disposition on the part of the senate to dispose of some appropriation bills during the week and it is probable that the fortifications bill, which was laid aside temporarily, will be passed, and that the pensions and District of Columbia bills may also be taken up and considerable progress made on them during the week. Mr. Blair has good reason to believe that his bill to settle the accounts of laborers and mechanics arising under the eight-hour law will be considered and even passed before the week is out and Mr. Platt is confident he can call up the copyright bill without any great diffi-culty. There is a possibility—a slight one, however—that an attempt will be made to bring the Bankruptcy Bill Before the Senate. The procedure in that body will depend mainly, however, on the action of a Republican caucus to be held early in the week. To this cause the Republican "steering committee" will report a programme, embracing, in all probability, the measures payred and the search the measures named, and the caucus will decide as to their disposition. The greater portion of the time of the house during the coming week will be occupied with the consideration of appro-priation bills. When the diplomatic ap-propriation bill is passed, Mr. Farquhar will make an effort to have the subsidy shipping bill disposed of, and two days will probably be allowed for considera-tion of this bill. The legislative ap-propriation bill will then be taken up and its consideration will consume the remainder of the week.

Among his best known pictures are "The Chess Players," "The Reader." "A Game of Piquet" and "The Skilled Players." Among his larger pictures are "A Charge of Cavalry," which was sold for 150,000 francs, and is in a private gallery in Cincinnati, and "The private gallery in Cincinnati, and "The Emperor of Solferino" and "1814." He made designs for Balze's "Comedie Humane," "Paul and Virginia," and other works. His pictures commanded great prices, and there are several of them in the United States.

Young Harris has been very attentive to the girl and had taken her to theatres and concerts, but always under the chaper onage of his mother. THE SECRETARY OF TREASURY.

The President May Appoint John C. New to Fill the Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The president opens wide the door of speculation and to those who read between the lines his determination to place John C. New, of Indiana, now consul general at London, at the head of the treasury department eems apparent. It will be remembered that Mr. New was very serious of entering the cabinet, and it was thought at one time that he had the treasury portfolio in his grasp. Since he has been in London he has been in correspondence with Secretary Windom and the president on financial matters and his qualifications are such as to admit of doubt regarding his ability to fill the That Indiana has already one cabinet officer would not in all probability deter the president from appointing his friend to the vacant secretary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The arrival of William D. All Caused by a Clerical Error.

Washington. Feb. 2. — Through a clerical error in misdirecting a letter in the treasury department, recently the collector at Buffalo, N. The live stock interest at Buffalo soon made itself heard in Washington, and the error having been discovered the necessary instructions to rectify it were yesterday sent to the collector at Buffalo.

> Ira N. Bodley, After Losing His Position, Began Drinking and was Then Rejected by the Daughter of a Well-to-Do Farmer-He Afterward Entered a Blacksmith Shop, Took a Rod of Iron, Gave it a Point and Heated it to a White Heat and Ran Against It.

BARRY, ILLS., Feb. 2.—Ira N. Bodley, a discharged brakeman of the Wabash road, committed suicide here in the most horrible manner imaginable. The day after he was discharged from the road he began to drink, and while in that condition called on William Hall, a well-to-do farmer living three miles west of here, and proposed for Hall's 18-year-old daughter. He was unceremoniously bounced, and returning to town began to drink heavily. He en-tered the blacksmith shop of his brother-in-law, W. I. Smith, and taking a rod of inch iron heated it, then gave it a point and heated about six inches

He put the bar in a vise and bent it, then deliberately removed his coat and vest and pressed his abdomen against the glowing iron. A colored boy named Willie Evans, who was in the rear of the shop, heard the sizzling of the flesh and saw the form of the rash man enveloped in a cloud of steam and smoke. With a cry of terror he escaped. Parties hearing the dying man's groans ran to him, but he was beyond aid. The boy was afraid to tell the truth, and the story was given out that Bodley had met with an accident.

THE FEAR OF STARVATION

Causes a Mother to Kill Ywo Children, Fire the House and Wound Herself.

HORTON, KAN., Feb. 2.-News has reached here of a horrible act of an insane woman who has been living on a farm several miles west of here. Mrs. Henry Wysong was left a widow two years ago with three children dependent on her. The fear of starvation so preyed on her mind that she attempted to kill her children and herself. The eldest, a boy of 12, got away from her after she had cut his throat with a knife, and he then ran to a neighbor's, giving the alarm. The neighbor hurried to the house and found the place in flames. The woman had killed the remaining two children and, after inflicting mortal wounds on herself, she set fire to the house. DOWN AN INCLINE.

A Kansas City Cable Car, Containing Nine Persons, Dashed to Pieces.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 2.—Arunaway cable train ran down the Union Depot incline at 8 o'clock Saturday night, and it was only by the merest chance that a number of lives were not lost. The incline is 1,000 feet long, and decsends at an angle of thirty degrees from Summit street to an elevated station east of the Union depot. At Summit street the grip broke, the brakes failed to work, and the train, unrestrained, shot down the incline at lightning speed. The passenger car contained nine persons. The train kept to the rails until it reached the curve at the bottom of the incline, when the grip car jumped the track and turned over on its side. The passenger coach crashed into it and reduced it to splinters. Gripman Bosly was seriously injured, but will recover. None of the passengers were hurt excepting C. E. Davison. He was cut with glass and badly bruised.

CLIVE HARPER VISITS THE ATELIER OF A MODISTE.

There the Correspondent Sees Some of the Gowns Shortly to Be Wern by New York Women of Wealth-A Few Words About Spring Wraps.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Yesterday I vissted the atelier of a very famous modiste, and was favored with a sight of a magefficent array of new dresses which are for some of the leaders of fashion in New York. A most beautiful ball gown, just imported for Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt,

GRAY GOWN-MRS. W. K. VANDERBILT'S DRESS

has the front of snowflake crepe, puffed on to the foundation skirt, and held in places by tiny pink velvet bows, each bow having a diamond set in the center. The skirt is en train and covered with

The overdress is of white satin sublime, embroidered all around with a band of pink silk and silver threads. There is a swathing sash around the slim waist and long loops and ends. The sash is pink Japanese crepe. The satin overdress is cut en princesse, is slightly looped at the sides, and is open in front, V shaped, and edged with the embroidery in a narrower border. The front is filled in with white snowflake crepe, and has two rows of tiny pink and white daisies crossing the breast and festooned on the shoulder just below the standing ruffles made of the crepe. Pink crepe is drawn down to a point below this on the arm and tied in a small knot. With this is to be worn a splendid triple necklace a large diamonds, and a star of the same precious stones in the hair. The illustration will show how the entire costume was arranged, and permit of any one copying it, even to the jewels, who feels the desire. It don't cost much-only about $75,000, jewels included.

The dainty and subdued little gown shown beside hers in the cut is of pearl gray cashmere and brocaded silk. The form is princesse front and back, and of the cashmere, there are three gathered bias ruffles at the foot in front, which is quite a favorite way of trimming. The | been only locally known as a player of ex- thought lost. back is princesse, in cashmere, and the sides, sleeves and corsage all are of the brocade, which is of dark gray and black. The whole gown is exceedingly tasteful and graceful, and would be an easy task for the home dressmaker.

Spring wraps are now worn during mild days by those ladies who like to have the name among their friends of always being the first to wear a style. I noticed a pretty pelisse in dark brown cheviot, trimmed with a wide band of beaver all around the bottom. It was belted in a point close at the waist and hung almost to the ground. Around the waist was a thick cord of brown silk, which was woven into a pretty pattern in front, and tied in a double bowknot at the back, and there were very handsome ornaments on the ends. The sleeves were covered with heavy braiding, and the waist had the same in Figaro style. Cap sleeves of brown velvet were edged

THE WORLD OF LETTERS.

A New Edition of Amy Fav's Book "Music Study in Germany." [Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- A new edition has recently been issued of Amy Fay's book entitled "Music Study in Germany." It is now ten years since the first edition was issued, and the sale has been steady for the book ever since. Miss Fay is a sisterin-law of Theodore Thomas, as the great conductor was married to a sister of Miss Fay recently in Chicago. Mr. Thomas is about to give up his New York residence and to remove to Chicago, where he is under contract to remain three years and manage the leading musical organization of that city. He has lived for ten years in the same house in New York, just off Union square. It is a house which has the repute of being lucky. It is owned by ex-Mayor Grace, and he lived in it when he was elected for the first time mayor of New York. When he moved to Murray Hill Mr. Thomas became his tenant, and it seemed as though from the day he entered that house his fortune became prosperous, but his greatest happiness was when a few months ago he brought the sister of Amy Fay to it as his bride.

The story of Miss Fay's little book is a most interesting one, and it seems as though her fame was to be established, not so much in the direction where her ambition pointed as through the publication of this book, which was originally written with no idea whatever of publication. Miss Fay was a Chicago girl, originally from the vicinity of Boston. She displayed extraordinary talent for piano playing and a remarkable fondness and understanding of music. She had as thorough an education in music as could be given in the Boston conservatories, but did not regard her education as sufficient, and in 1869 she went to Germany. At that time the historian Bancroft was the United States minister to the Prussian government, and he was an intimate friend of some members of Miss Fay's family. She was able to enjoy special facilities on account of his friendship.

Miss Fay remained in Germany some five years, and in that time was brought in professional contact with the greatest musicians of the world. That brilliant genius Tausig gave her some of the last lessons of his life; she saw Wagner many times, and was one of the first to appreciate him of all Americans; she was in Berlin at the time of the Franco-Prussian war. That great teacher Kullak gave her lessons, and she was often able to meet such geniuses as Joachim, Clara Schumann, Von Bulow and Rubinstein. She was also one of the private pupils of Liszt, and saw much of him in his professional and private life.

After this training Miss Fay returned to This was granted to those America, where she probably would have traordinary gifts had it not been for the book. She became a teacher in the Chicago conservatory, and seldom appears as a public performer. During Miss Fay's absence she wrote letters to her friends at home, and these letters were brimful of anecdotes, characterizations of the geniuses of the musical world, clever analyses of the talents of these great men and women and charming bits of description. She wrote them for private eyes alone, but the letters were written with such delightful simplicity of style, were so lucid and graphic and so evidently the reflection of an enthusiastic soul that they were passed about from friend to friend and were looked for with the greatest interest.

When she returned a member of the familv collected the letters and edited them. taking out such comments as were of a private nature purely, and they were published in 1880. The literary and musical world recognized the book at once as a work of extraordinary ability, unconsciously exercised as it was. The book brought her fame at once, and it seems now to have safely passed the test and become a permanent contribution to our literature. It was in 1870 that she wrote of Wagner: "Wagner's melodies are so heavily and intoxicatingly sweet that they are almost narcotic. His music excites a set of emotions that no other music does, and he is a great original. I always feel as if I would like to swoon away when I hear his compositions." Of Joachim she said that "the pathetic tones he draws from his violin go through one like a knife." Twenty years later Miss Fay's judgment of Wagner is that of every one, although at that time her opinion would have been regarded as musical heresy in America. Her descriptions of Liszt are delightful and intensely graphic. But we might go on repeating extracts from the work ad libitum. It is so free from technical terms that any one may read it with pleasure.

E. J. EDWARDS.

A Shrewd Janitor. The public and private halls in a certain class of New York apartment houses are heated by a furnace in the basement. This furnace is attended by a janitor, who with his family occupies the habitable portion of the underground story. The tenants of one such apartment house have lately cleared up a great mystery connected with the erratic actions of the furnace. In mild weather this furnace gave off such volumes of heat that not only the halls but every room in each apartment were thoroughly warmed; but each time the mercury got down in the vicinity of zero the registers in the halls persisted in giving up nothing but quantities of ice cold air. In response to agonized appeals down the speaking tube the janitor would pile in more coal and shake down the cinders violently, all of which had no perceptible effect above the basement. The tenant who solved the mystery was the one who, knowing something about furnaces himself, went down to the janitor's domain to investigate mat-ters. He found the atmosphere of the basement hot enough to roast apples, and was at once enlightened. Though the furnace was ostensibly there to promote the

OPORTO INSURRECTION.

THE RINGLEADERS OF THE REVOLT TO BE TRIED IMMEDIATELY.

Death is Almost Certain to be Their Fate -King Carlos Sees the Necessity of the Severest Penalty Being Dealt to the Mutineers - Others Engaged in the Outbreak will be Drafted to Angols and Mozamb'que, which Means to Them an Early Death.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Upon the suppression of the Oporto insurrection a court martial was immediately ordered to try the ring leaders in the revolt, whose fate is certain to be death. All day Saturday, while the result of the struggle was still in the balance, crowds thronged the principal streets of Lisbon, eagerly waiting for news and discussing the situation. Some of the lower class were evidently bent upon mischief, but they readily dispersed at the command of the police. The government has intain the extent of the disaffection, although it is believed that the conspiracy did not extend the constant way. spiracy did not extend beyond the troops engaged in the insurrection and did not include any persons high in authority. Radical measures are pro-posed for the searching and weeding out of dangerous individuals and all foreigners upon whom suspicion may rest will be ordered to leave Portugal. The government of King Carlos finds itself strengthened instead of weakened by the outbreak, which gives a pretext for rigorous measures which have been long thought desirable. No suspicion of any collusion with the conspiracy attaches to Serpa Pinto or any of the others who have been really prominent in the anti-English agitation. It was an Outburst of Republicanism, fostered by petty agitators in the rank and file of the army. King Carlos, who was reported to be inclined to mercy, has, it is now stated, been led to see the necessity of the severest penalties for the mutineers, besides the execution of the ringleaders, the remainder of the men engaged in the outbreak will be drafted to Angols and Mozambique, under strict guard, and there established as garrisons in the interior of Portugese Africa, which, for the most part, is very unhealthy and not fit for the residence of Europeans. Portugal has lately felt the need of garrisoning her African possessions with white troops, instead of the half savage native levies, who degrade the Portugese uniform and authority, but there has been a reluctance to subject any but volunteers to the miseries of the African climate. As the Oporto rebels have forfeited their lives there will be no squeamishness about exposing them to hardship. The Count of Paris was greatly con-cerned when he heard of the insurrection, and at once telegraphed to his daughter, Queen Amelie, to hasten to England in case of danger.

The grand jury also found two bills of indictment jury also found two bills of indictment against James S. Dungan, in both of which he is charged with perjury. The perjury in these cases is alleged to have been committed in swearing to false and fraudulent quarterly returns of a bank to the auditor general. Dungan is in prison. All the coke operators in the region will be present, and the miners will be represented by Messrs. Wise, Parker, Spence, Barrett, Kergan, De Haven and McBride.
